Form 990, Part III, Line 3 – narrative description of changes in program services

As explained in more detail below, Rural Investment Corporation's ("RIC's") Form 1023 application was drafted with reference to a specific program. Although its programming remains similar in nature and purpose, certain details have changed.

Background. The Center for Rural Affairs (the "Center") formed Rural Investment Corporation ("RIC") in 1996. The Center is a Nebraska nonprofit corporation, exempt from tax under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (the "Code"). The Center qualifies as a public charity as an organization that normally receives a substantial part of its support from a governmental unit or from the general public, as described in Code Section 170(b)(1)(A)(vi). The Center's mission is to establish strong rural communities, social and economic justice, environmental stewardship, and genuine opportunity for all while engaging people in decisions that affect the quality of their lives and the future of their communities. The Center formed RIC in 1996 to carry out its exempt purpose, through the program services described below.

RIC submitted Form 1023 in 1996. On January 6, 1997, the Internal Revenue Service (the "Service") issued a determination letter (the "Determination Letter") concluding that RIC was exempt from income tax under Code Section 501(a), as an organization described in Code Section 501(c)(3). The Determination Letter further concluded that RIC qualified as a supporting organization under Code Section 509(a)(3), and thus, did not constitute a private foundation.

Program Services Described on 1996 Form 1023. RIC's 1996 Form 1023 describes RIC's purpose as administration of a program (the "Land Link Program") intended to provide affordable credit to first-time farmers and ranchers, in exchange for the farmer's or rancher's agreement to adopt conservation measures and environmental practices, and to participate in an educational outreach service. The application anticipated accomplishing this program through a collaboration of public and private partners. Ultimately, the Land Link Program did not come to fruition. From 2001 until 2011, RIC had virtually no assets, received no contributions, and had no expenditures. During this time, RIC's activities consisted of conducting required reporting under state and federal law.

Current Program Services. Although the Land Link Program did not come to fruition, the Center continued to explore ways to carry out its exempt purpose through lending to underserved populations. The Center eventually determined that it could carry out its exempt purpose in this manner through a Community Development Financial Institution ("CDFI"). Federal regulations require that a CDFI's primary purpose consist of lending. The Center's own activities are broader than lending. However, the Center determined that it could amend RIC's Bylaws, so that RIC could qualify as a CDFI while continuing to carry out the Center's exempt purposes through lending activities. RIC amended and restated its Bylaws in 2011. Starting in 2011, RIC's principal activities consisted of research and preparation for qualification as a CDFI, and a pilot program of lending to underserved populations, within the scope of the Center's exempt purposes.

Consistent with its purpose to support the Center, the restated Bylaws reflect RIC's mission to provide financing and technical assistance in support of community development, including startup and expansion of small businesses, creation of jobs and other community assets, and improving access to services and ownership opportunities especially for low-income or otherwise disadvantaged people.

The Department of Treasury determined that RIC qualified as a CDFI on October 25, 2013.

The following paragraphs provide a narrative description of RIC's activities since qualifying as a CDFI and current and anticipated future activities.

What is the activity? As a CDFI, RIC's principal activity consists of promoting community development through financing of businesses, housing, community facilities, and other community needs; providing associated development services; and serving primarily low- to moderate- income borrowers and other underserved populations. It conducts these activities to carry out the Center's exempt purposes.

RIC's current activities consist of business assistance, financing, and associated development services. Examples of business assistance activities include one-on-one technical assistance in business matters like managing cash flow and budgeting. Examples of financing activities include small business loans to low- to moderate-income individuals, businesses, and nonprofit organizations. Examples of associated development services include small business courses and community planning to support low- to moderate-income individuals.

RIC expects to continue to perform the services described in the previous paragraph for the foreseeable future. In the future, it may expand the program to include housing, consumer, and community facilities lending. Any such expansion would continue to support the Center's exempt purposes through a focus on low- to moderate-income individuals, businesses, and nonprofit organizations, and other underserved populations who are unable to access traditional sources of financing.

Who conducts the activity? From 2011 through the present, RIC has conducted its lending activities year-round, through its staff. RIC anticipates that it will continue to do so for the foreseeable future.

Where is the activity conducted? RIC's physical offices are in Lyons, Nebraska. Currently, it conducts its lending activities throughout Nebraska. In the future, RIC may expand its activities to other states.

How does the activity further your exempt purpose? RIC's Articles of Incorporation provide that its purpose shall be to operate solely and exclusively for the benefit of, to perform the functions of, and to carry out the purposes of the Center, so long as the Center qualifies as a charitable organization exempt from tax under Code Section 501(c)(3). The Center's purpose, in turn, is to establish strong rural communities by promoting social and economic justice, environmental stewardship, and genuine opportunity for all, while engaging people in decisions that affect the quality of their lives and the future of their communities. As a CDFI, RIC provides loans and technical assistance to small businesses and nonprofit organizations that are unable to access support from traditional sources, such as banks. Consistent with the Center's charitable purpose, which RIC exists to support, RIC's efforts focus on low- to moderate-income borrowers, Latino borrowers, and other underserved populations in rural areas. Such activities result in community benefit and improved social welfare in a way that the law regards as charitable. Rev. Rul. 74-587.

What percentage of your total time is allocated to the activity? RIC allocates approximately 100% of its time to its lending and related development services activities. RIC anticipates that it will continue to do so for the foreseeable future.

How is the activity funded? RIC funds the activity through donations, private foundation grants, government grants, and program income. RIC anticipates that it will continue to do so for the foreseeable future.

Alternate names under which RIC operates. RIC conducts its operations under the name the Rural Enterprise Assistance Program ("REAP"). RIC anticipates that it will continue to do so for the foreseeable future.
